The smart choice

Council launches new Smart City strategy

by Dan Stephens

THE royal borough's ambitious aim of becoming a 'Smart City' was officially launched last Thursday (October 22) at the Digital Greenwich hub, on the Greenwich Peninsula.

At the event, the royal borough's council leader Denise Hyland outlined the four key themes that will make up the 'Smart Cities' approach – they include a focus on transforming neighbourhoods, infrastructure, public services and the local economy.

The council's Smart City approach will use digital technologies and the latest information and communications systems to improve services, engage more effectively with residents and bring improvements in areas such as transport and traffic management, as well as the energy, health care, water and waste sectors.

Recycle more NHS equipment

A FEW years ago I was diagnosed with arthritis and I have been very grateful to receive equipment that has helped me get around my home and live independently.
Some of the equipment I have been able to return as I have had surgery. But some has been refused. I had a wooden hand rail added to my staircase but had a stair lift put in a week later. I was told to throw out the hand rail - a friend has made use of it.
More recently I returned from hospital with walking frames and a commode. The frames have gone back but the commode, unused and still wrapped up, has been refused. I have been told to give it to a charity shop.
The NHS is reported to have financial difficulties and my carers who come once a day have told me that a lot of equipment is refused for return.

I appreciate hygiene requirements but it is so wasteful to give valuable equipment away.

Ms Daryl O'Sullivan, Abbey Wood

● A joint statement from Greenwich Clinical Commissioning Group and the royal borough reads: "We are grateful to Ms O'Sullivan for highlighting this important issue. NHS Greenwich Clinical Commissioning Group (CCG) and the royal borough have an established policy regarding the collection and recycling of community equipment. This policy aims to maximise the recycling of community equipment in a cost effective and environmentally friendly way and our provider of community equipment is required to adhere to this policy. The current policy determines that hand rails cannot be recycled. This is due to infection control requirements and the cost of removal. Our provider is also unable to restore walls and other surfaces after removal of the hand rail. We were not aware of an unused commode and this may be a recording error from the hospital when issuing it.

We will follow this up with Ms O'Sullivan, as well as reviewing the collection policy to ensure it is being implemented by our provider. Additionally, we have been looking at how we could work through our community volunteer network to increase the re-use of community equipment.
This scheme has just started and we are exploring how equipment from the scheme could support with local training and employment initiatives."

Road sweeper Kenny goes the extra mile

I WISH to say a massive thank you to Kenny, our council road sweeper. He always goes the extra mile when he sweeps our road, is very thorough regarding his work, with a ready smile and cheerful disposition.
We regularly suffer with rubbish being dumped, and it must be soul destroying to have to keep cleaning up the rubbish. Do keep up the good work Kenny you really do make a difference.

Mrs Green, Abbey Wood

● A council spokesperson said:
"It is always great to receive positive feedback about our staff. We will make sure we pass your thanks on to him. Thank you for taking the time to write."

Remains of 'Saxon village' found at development site

SKELETON: Archaeologists examine bones that have survived later concrete foundations, left, the remains of medieval tenement buildings

ARCHAEOLOGISTS working on a building site in Woolwich have dug up more evidence to prove that people have lived on the spot for nearly 3,000 years.

A team from Oxford University is working for Berkeley Homes, the company behind the Royal Arsenal Riverside development which will bring 5,000 new homes plus restaurants and shops.

The archaeologists have already uncovered an enormous ditch 18 metres wide and six inches deep, dating back to the late Iron Age, part of an early settlement on the banks of the Thames. They have also found evidence of the Roman occupation of the site, as well as the remains of medieval houses with cellars, outbuildings and wells.

But the most surprising discovery involves the 76 skeletons buried together that were found earlier this year. Carbon dating confirms they are from the late 7th century or early 8th century, which means they are some of the original inhabitants of Saxon Woolwich. This was then a small trading settlement mentioned in historical records, but little evidence of its existence has been found – until now.

David Score, Oxford Archaeology project manager, said: "It is amazing to find such a large number of relatively well-preserved skeletons, despite all the later buildings on the site over the years. They seem to represent a mixed population, with males, females, children and adults present. It seems the burials do represent an early Christian tradition."

Karl Whiteman, Berkeley's divisional manager, said: "It is incredible to see evidence from so many different time periods still intact at Royal Arsenal Riverside. These excavations will enable us and the residents of Woolwich to get an even better understanding of what life was like there so many centuries ago."

The site is rich in local history. In the 1850s it was a gasworks, and the remains of four former gasometers have also been found. Isabel Benavides, heritage & interpretation manager with Royal Greenwich Heritage Trust, centre spokesman said: "It is exciting news to have unearthed a glimpse of Saxon Woolwich right on our doorstep. It demonstrates what a rich and layered history we enjoy in the royal borough."

Legacy of war on the Commonwealth

AS part of Black History Season, The Greenwich Inclusion project (GRiP) is presenting The Empire Needs Men and the Black Poppy Rose – a commemoration of the service given by people around the world during World War I.

The presentation, given by the group Black Poppy Rose, will discuss the involvement of people in the First World War from regions that were part of the British Empire at the time – such as Africa, the Caribbean and India. It will act as a reminder of how the profound and lasting legacy of the war affected countries in the Commonwealth.

The presentation will involve discussions, photos, speeches and debate. GRiP is a local organisation which acts as a hub for support, information, advice and guidance to ensure a safe and harmonious community.

The Empire Needs Men and the Black Poppy Rose takes place at 6pm tomorrow (Wednesday October 28) at Royal Sovereign House (2nd Floor) Beresford St SE18 6BF.

Road repairs team win top green award

A TEAM of young people learning how to repair minor roads in the borough have scooped a top environmental award.

The group carried out a tree-planting project in Crown Woods Way, Eltham, while employed on the council's Highways Improvement and Local Labour (HILL) project. This was set up to train unemployed young people to make road and pavement repairs, install new lighting, and remove unnecessary 'street furniture'.

They worked with the Trees for Cities charity to develop a way to reduce surface water and reduce the risk of flooding in the residential street. This involved planting trees and improving the drainage by installing 'rain gardens' to help water drain away. And they planted 11 oak and birch trees and installed specialised pits to help drainage and the trees to grow.

Their work won them a biodiversity award in a national competition sponsored by CIRIA, the construction industry's research and information association. They took the prize for the 'most innovative' project.

Trees for Cities kept local residents up to date with the project by door-knocking and delivering flyers and inviting them to come and learn about street tree watering and care. The charity will maintain the trees for three years before handing the project over to the council, who will then be responsible for the trees' maintenance as the landowner.

Cllr Sizwe James, the council's cabinet member for business, employment and skills, said: "This award-winning project shows how green infrastructure can be used as an effective and sustainable urban drainage system on streets and roadsides.

This helps reduce surface water flooding, reduces noise and pollution, and increases local biodiversity, which is all good news for the local community. My congratulations to the HILL team for an excellent outcome to their hard work."

BEFORE AND AFTER: a keep clear barrier has been transformed into new rain gardens with six oak trees, main pic, Eltham South Ward councillor Matt Clare and a Trees for Cities worker put the finishing touches to pavement trees

Royal borough up for 'living wage' award

by Dick Townsend-Smith

THE council has been shortlisted for a prestigious award for the way it has encouraged local employers to sign up to the London Living Wage scheme.

Dozens of firms have already signed up, which means they get a discount on the business rates they pay to the council. Along with the royal borough, they have all committed to pay their staff a minimum of £9.15 per hour.

The Living Wage Foundation recognises and celebrates the leadership shown by Living Wage employers across the UK. It has written to the council, saying it has been shortlisted for the Living Wage Employer Champion Awards. The results will be announced during Living Wage Week 2015 November 1-7.

Before that, the council is hosting a special event at the Woolwich Centre in Wellington Street on Monday (November 2) to thank businesses who have signed up to the London Living Wage. They will be presented with their accreditation plaques by Cllr Denise Hyland, the leader of the council.

The council offered business rates discounts to the first hundred local companies that become accredited this year. The discount covers five years' worth of London Living Wage subscriptions. The offer aims to encourage local businesses committed to the scheme to support their local communities and the local economy generally by paying staff the London Living Wage.

Employers that pay the London Living Wage say they have made valuable savings by improving staff recruitment, retaining more staff, cutting absenteeism, and raising their profile by being a London Living Wage employer.

Council leader Denise Hyland said: "It's good news that the royal borough has been shortlisted for such a prestigious award. We hope that in the near future many other businesses sign up to our scheme.

"Paying the London Living Wage has been shown to have a positive impact for both business and employees. It all adds to the overall message that the Royal Borough of Greenwich is a great place to work in and to base a business."

SIGNED UP: reps from chartered surveyors and construction consultants Martin Arnold received a plaque from Greenwich and Woolwich MP Matthew Pennycook and council leader Denise Hyland after signing up earlier this year

No junked food

University recycles all waste produce

by Simon Banks

THE University of Greenwich is cooking up new ways to ensure no food is wasted from kitchens in its canteens, cafes and halls of residence.

Currently no waste goes to landfill – 47 per cent is recycled and the rest goes to a rubbish-burning incinerator in Deptford to produce power.

Now the uni is promising that not a crumb of food will be wasted with 100 per cent of uneaten or inedible food going to composting by the end of 2016.

It's all part of the university's efforts to reduce waste and recycle as much as it can and it has become a leading light in food sustainability, winning awards for its green initiatives.

Now the uni has signed up to the Good Food in Greenwich (GFiG) campaign to share information of its latest project and network with other organisations locally. The Good Food in Greenwich (GFiG) initiative unites local organisations and businesses who are working to grow, produce, prepare and share good food that is healthy, sustainable, affordable and accessible to all.

Emily Mason, the sustainability projects officer at the University of Greenwich, said: "We recognise that sustainable food is not just about what is served on the plate but the whole life cycle of food including food waste and this is part of our Sustainable Food Policy. We have met our target and no food waste or biodegradable disposables go to landfill and now we are working on our waste contract so that in the future all food waste and biodegradable material will go to be composted."

The university is 'first class' when it comes to sustainable development and is one of the leading universities in London in terms of being green. Back in the summer, its student union won a gold award from the National Union of Students for its environmental projects, which included a Green Week, an edible garden and wormery and campaigns around saving energy and water.

Last year the university picked up the 'Corporate Achievement Award' from the Chartered Institute of Ecology and Environment Management for its work delivering proactive biodiversity plans throughout university buildings. In 2012, it won 1st place in the People and Planet's Green League and in 2013 it won the prestigious Times Higher Award for 'Outstanding Contribution to Sustainable Development'.

Two years in jail for tenancy fraudster

A COMPUTER programmer has been jailed for two years for council tenancy fraud after telling the council he had nowhere to live when he owned a three-bedroom house.

Fifty-year-old Kolawole Yusuf was sentenced to 26 months at Woolwich Crown Court on October 12 having failed to declare that he owned his own house whilst applying for council accommodation.

The court heard Mr Yusuf had completed a housing application form for himself, his wife and two children in 2004 when he declared that he did not own his own property.

The family were given a two-bedroom house in Deptford and in 2014, when they had two more children, they moved to a three-bed house in Kidbrooke, SE3. Once again he declared that he did not have any other accommodation to live in.

In June last year a royal borough repairs team visited the property to undertake essential work however, the occupant told them he would need to speak with his landlord to get permission for them to enter the property. It became clear the house was being sublet and it was reported to the council's unauthorised occupation team for further investigation.

Enquiries found he had bought a three bedroom house in Romford, Essex, for £75,000, in October 2001, and that he had rented the property for emergency housing with the London Borough of Havering for around ten years.

During an interview under caution with fraud officers, he admitted he owned the Romford property. He explained that he hadn't declared it as he had been hoping to sell it and returned the Kidbrooke property to the royal borough.

When he pleaded not guilty to offences under the fraud and theft act, the matter was passed to Woolwich Crown Court for trial where Mr Yusuf pleaded guilty to all charges.

Sentencing Mr Yusuf to 26 months imprisonment, Her Honour Judge Downing stated that she had already given him a 25 per cent sentencing discount for his early guilty plea.

The royal borough is now seeking recovery of over £132,000 from Mr Yusuf incurred as a result of providing emergency accommodation for those in genuine need.

Cllr Chris Kirby, the council's cabinet member for housing, said "To receive over 2 years in jail for falsely obtaining council accommodation goes to show that this type of offence is serious and that the royal borough has no hesitation in prosecuting those who deprive genuine housing applicants of much needed accommodation. I am pleased to hear that despite Mr Yusuf being in prison, the royal borough will now be pursuing him for its financial losses."

● If you suspect someone of committing fraud against the royal borough please call 0800 169 6975 or email fraud@royalgreenwich.gov.uk. Any information you give will be treated in confidence.

Schools strike London Mayor Gold awards

SCHOOLS in Royal Greenwich are top of the gold standard.

The borough has more primary schools than anywhere else in London when it comes to the London Mayor's 'Gold Club' scheme. These spotlight schools that go the extra mile to ensure that all their pupils do well – particularly those that have 'bucked the trend' for disadvantaged students and those who were once lower achievers. This year the borough has 11 primaries named as Gold Club schools out of 67 in the capital – the highest of the lot. They were named as Boxgrove, Cardwell, Cherry Orchard, Deansfield, Halstow, Henwick, Horn Park, Meridian, Our Lady of Grace, St Peter's and Windrush. The secondary schools listed were Harris Academy and Woolwich Polytechnic.

Gold Club members are schools that have succeeded against the odds in improving pupils' aspirations and achievements. Jacqui Willer, headteacher at Henwick Primary School told GT: "We are continually looking at ways to ensure that all our pupils achieve high attainment irrespective of their background. London Schools Gold Club status is fantastic recognition of the work we do and the progress our students make. Our pupils make exceptional achievements whatever their starting point in life."

Pupils make new pals in Ghana

FRIENDS: Cllr Fahy and Charlton pupils talk to pupils in Ghana

OVER 4,000 miles separate pupils from Charlton Manor Primary School and pupils from schools in Tema, Ghana – but that hasn't stopped them from making friends.

Year Six pupils met students from Twedaase primary school and Manhean TMA primary school on Skype, the online video-chat app, during a special networking day on Monday last week.

The link up was part of the royal borough's town twinning initiatives, which have built long-term relationships with communities in Germany, Slovenia and Ghana, aimed at developing community projects and activities to help develop relationship and understanding of history, culture and lifestyle.

Children from Charlton Manor held a question and answer session with children from Tema, learning about the similarities and differences they shared in education, lifestyle, diet, health and sports. The two sets of children also sang to one another.

Pupils from the school on Indus Road enjoyed the afternoon making friends online, while project leader Joe Turner-Wing and Cllr John Fahy, the council's cabinet member for children's services and long-term supporter of town twinning initiatives, travelled to Tema at their own cost to meet the children in person. The school hopes the on-going project will lead to an exchange visit.

The royal borough's council leader Denise Hyland who sat in on the video chat with the Charlton pupils, said: "The royal borough is proud of the town twinning initiative and is committed to building relationships with communities overseas so that both can benefit in various ways. It was fantastic to witness two schools connect from across the world, and the link up was a unique and invaluable opportunity for them to learn lessons from each other."

Headteacher Tim Baker, said: "It is a wonderful opportunity for the pupils and the school to be a part of this twinning process. It's already taught the children that we have just as many similarities as differences and opened their minds to another way of life in a country very different to ours. The children have already learned so much about the Ghanaian way of life and have been fascinated."

Is someone else's child living with you?

A TWO-WEEK information campaign is underway to encourage people who look after someone else's child to register as a private foster carer. If they do, they could be entitled to advice and support from the council.

A private fostering arrangement involves someone caring for a child under the age of 16, or 18 if disabled, who is not a close relative, for more than 28 days.

Local authorities have a legal duty to safeguard all children from harm and neglect. With private fostering arrangements, the council will check the suitability of private foster carers, as well as the household and accommodation for the child. Officers make regular visits, make sure that advice is available, and that the child is receiving a good overall standard of care.

CLr John Fahy, the council's cabinet member for children's services, said: "Not everyone realises that if they look after someone else's child on a regular basis, they need to register this as a private fostering arrangement. Although private fostering is very different from the care of children provided by local authorities through approved foster carers, our Children's Services team still needs to be informed."

The council's information campaign began yesterday (Monday, October 26) and runs until November 8.

IN SAFE HANDS: conservators work on the flag before it's displayed. Pics: National Maritime Museum, London.

Battle of Trafalgar flag on show

AN incredibly rare Union flag flown from one of the ships in the battle of Trafalgar in 1805 has gone on display at the National Maritime Museum in Greenwich.

It marks the commemoration of Trafalgar Day last Wednesday, October 21. The flag was flown from the HMS Minotaur following an order issued by the hero of the battle, Admiral Lord Nelson. He stated: "When in presence of an enemy, all the ships under my command are to bear White Colours and a Union Jack is to be suspended from the fore-topgallant stay." This was to avoid confusion with the French and Spanish colours.

Conservators at the museum have restored the flag to as close to its original form as possible. It has been thoroughly cleaned, and had several small holes and losses repaired.

The flag came from the Church of St Mary's Selling, Kent, and was the prize of Stephen Hilton, who served as the Master's Mate on the Minotaur. At the time it was common practice for warrant officers, such as Hilton, or junior officers to take ensigns as rewards after battle. Hilton returned to Selling at the close of the Napoleonic Wars and is buried in the churchyard of St Mary's, having died aged 85 in 1872. His descendants presented the flag to the church in the 1930s.

The flag is now on display to the public in the museum's Nelson, Navy, Nation gallery, alongside a rich array of objects relating to the battle, including the uniform worn by Nelson when he was shot and died aboard HMS Victory.

LAST week Royal Greenwich launched an exciting new strategy in its aim to become a leader in the latest technologies in all aspects of life for residents, businesses and visitors - and to improve the efficiency and the effectiveness of its services. Dan Stephens learns how the strategy will benefit businesses and local communities

The royal borough is home to more than a quarter of a million people and is a world famous tourist destination, with 18 million people visiting every year. The council is facing a growing challenge of delivering better services and boosting the employment prospects and the quality of work for local people.

By becoming a Smart City the royal borough is aiming to develop innovative ways of meeting these challenges in a smarter and quicker way, creating new opportunities for business and local communities in the process.

Cllr Denise Hyland, leader of the Royal Borough of Greenwich, said: "I'm immensely proud of the transformational work that we are doing at the moment. In the face of the rapid increase in the borough's population and in the face of globalisation and technological change, we have to invest in the future and face these challenges head on, right now.

"We have to invest in a modern built environment, in globally competitive connectivity, in the skills of our people, and the transformation of our own public services to meet the needs of all our residents, young and old. The Smart City strategy sets out our approach to take Royal Greenwich into the future. This comprehensive approach to delivering a smarter borough is not an option – it is a necessity. There is no alternative."

Partners on smarter solution

TECHNOLOGY giants NEC Europe will be working with the royal borough to help implement the Smart City strategy. The partnership with NEC will help the royal borough develop smart city technologies to support the economic, social and physical regeneration of the borough – making it a better place for people to live, visit and work in.

The council's Digital Greenwich team will collaborate on analysing information – gathered with the latest technology – to plan improvements to services for local residents. This might include using technology to provide better information on which to base decisions; to understand the impact of decisions on neighbourhoods and communities; and to improve how the council responds and engages with residents and businesses. For example, the use of data analytics will improve things like journey planning and alternatives to car use – which in turn will improve air quality for local residents and travellers. Information will be available to local entrepreneurs and developers, enabling them to create new services designed to meet the needs of residents. It's hoped this will spur the development of new skills and the growth of new digital businesses in the borough.

Cllr Denise Hyland, leader of the royal borough said: "Working with NEC will enable us to improve a wide range of services, including transport, social care, housing, waste management, smart grid and many others. NEC's expertise in analysing data gathered in the borough, and the insights this will generate, will be a vital part of our smart city strategy."

Strategy

A Smart City builds on the council's vision for the future of the royal borough and focuses on transforming four neighbourhoods and communities – working to meet needs of residents in the face of significant changes to the local community

Infrastructure – developing a strategy to ensure ultra-fast broadband to all parts of the borough and improving understanding of the built environment and how it works

Services – reviewing the structure of existing services and starting new innovative cost-effective ways of delivering services for the benefit of residents

Economy – attracting new forward-looking businesses to the borough, supporting existing businesses, creating jobs for local people, which helps to regenerate the area and drive the local economy.

Dejan Bojic, director of the Smart City Solutions Programme at NEC Europe said: "Greenwich has a comprehensive and ambitious smart city strategy. Getting smarter by the day

PRAISE for the council's strategy to move the borough rapidly into the digital age, by bringing digital technology into all aspects of everyday life, has come from a leading industry specialist.

Dr Mike Short CBE is a vice-president with Telefonica and a member of the Smart London Board, set up by the Mayor of London to bring together a top line of experts including academics, businesses and entrepreneurs to help advise on how London can put digital technological at the heart of the capital.

Dr Short said: "These are exciting times in Greenwich. This is an ambitious strategy, as it needs to be. I think business will sit up and take notice, and see that Greenwich is building on its tradition of being at the heart of innovation and a gateway to discovery – and a great place to be."

His colleague in Telefonica Vinnett Taylor added: "We are working with Greenwich on the feasibility of connected street assets as well as the GATEway (driverless car) project.

"This will help us generate systems for effective management of automated transport and has an important role in managing traffic flow and parking pressures, leading to a better quality of life for local residents and businesses."

Royal Greenwich is working with a range of technology-based companies of all sizes to help with its Smart City approach.

Crowd Vision has developed systems for tracking people through public spaces and is used internationally by cities to help manage large flows of people through places like airports, train stations, busy streets. The company provides a specialist service for clients in the public safety, security and transport sectors providing accurate crowd numbers, live insights, and early warning of potential over-crowding. CEO Fiona Strens said: "We're a fast growing technology business and chose to make our home in Greenwich because we needed a good value, highly connected, innovative location. We've also successfully hired people with great attitudes and skills from the local community. It's perfect for us."

Blackheath gets ready to blast off

BLACKHEATH will light up once again to entertain thousands of residents and visitors on Saturday November 7 to mark Bonfire Night.

The biggest free fireworks display in London promises to be a spectacle not to be missed. Designed and choreographed by Greenwich-based arts group Emergency Exit Arts, this autumn's display is set to be an incredible sight that lights up the sky over the royal borough.

The display is organised by Lewisham with financial support from the royal borough and is expected to be enjoyed by tens of thousands of people. The display will fire up at 8pm, with a funfair for all the family to enjoy from midday, plus food and drink served from 5pm.

Thanks to funding from other organisations such as London and Quadrant, Glendale, Hamptons International, The Clarendon Hotel and The Crown Pub, the event remains one of very few fireworks events in London to be free to enter. Although organisers are asking visitors to help keep the event free by making a donation. This can be done by contributing to the collection buckets on the night, online at www.lewisham.gov.uk/fireworks or by dropping into Age Exchange Blackheath. Royal borough council leader Denise Hyland said: "Residents and visitors are welcome to this spectacular event that has a proud reputation of entertaining people of all ages. This event is one of the highlights of the South-East London calendar and we are delighted that it remains so popular." Residents are reminded not to take dogs to the fireworks display and to keep all pets indoors. It is also illegal to take any fireworks, including sparklers and sky lanterns, onto the heath. Residents are advised to take public transport to the event, as there will be a number of road closures and limited parking during the display.

Warm up with winter arts fest

SATURDAY sees the launch of a three-week festival of community arts at venues across Eltham.

The Eltham Arts Festival runs from October 31 to November 22 and starts at 11am when the Eltham Bell Ringers strike the bells at St John's Church. The grand opening starts at 11.30am in Passey Place where there will be Halloween-themed activities along with live music and a visit from the cast of the Wizard of Oz at the Bob Hope Theatre.

Chair of Eltham Arts Gaynor Wingham, said: "We believe the arts are a great way of bringing the community together and the idea for the Eltham Arts Winter Festival was one of five big ideas for the future of the arts in Eltham."

RESIDENTS and pupils have started to prepare for this year's Eltham Lights Up winter festival on November 19. They are working with arts and crafts projects to create themed paper lanterns that will feature in the annual parade through Eltham town centre. Since it started in 1991, the community festival which is backed by the royal borough, has grown in popularity with an audience of around 7,000 and up to 500 people taking part.

The event includes a procession through the streets and an entertainment stage and is seen by locals as the start of the festive shopping season. Emergency Exit Arts is running lantern-making workshops at local schools and community centres in the coming weeks. The theme centres around the UNESCO International Year of Light and Light Based Technologies and lantern designs will reflect themes of cosmic, natural, man made, reflective light amongst others.

Lantern-making workshops for residents are taking place on Saturday November 7, 11am - 2pm at the Eltham Centre, Archery Road, Eltham SE9 1HA and on November 14 at St Mary's Community Centre, 180 Eltham High Street, Eltham SE9 1BJ.

GreenwichHomes

Royal Borough of Greenwich's Choice Based Lettings Scheme

Edition 465

BIDDING FOR PROPERTIES

People on the Housing register are able to bid for all properties, regardless of their banding. You must be eligible for the size of property and bids will be considered in the following order:

First Band A, followed by Band B both in priority date order.
Those in Band C will then be considered in registration date order.

Please note that there will still be some properties with age restrictions so only people of this age group can apply for these.

- A is for applicants in unsatisfactory housing, including people moving due to demolition and those underoccupying their homes.
- B is for applicants the Royal Borough of Greenwich must prioritise according to the law, particularly homeless people, and others with an urgent need to move for medical or welfare reasons.
- C is for all applicants on the housing register, including those that are in priority bands A and B.

How do I apply?

1 Get on the list

First, you've got to be on the housing waiting list to join the scheme. If you're not, register an application on line at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk

2 Find your applicant number

It will be on the letter you've already had from the Royal Borough of Greenwich about the new scheme. You'll need that number and the reference number of the property you're after, which will be on the advert.

3 Pick out your ideal property by looking in Greenwich Time or regularly checking the website:

www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/homes

Click on your preference on the website. If you don't have a computer, you can always use one for free at either The Eltham or Woolwich Centre or a local library.

4 Apply in one of three ways

- Text bidding is now available and the number to use is 07786207913. For further information please see page 2, or
- Phone the 24-hour hotline 020 8921 4340. It's an automatic push-button system and calls will be charged at the normal local rate, or
- Via the Royal Borough of Greenwich's website www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/homes

The next edition of GreenwichHomes will be available on Wednesday 4 November 2015 at midday. Closing date for all applications for this issue is midnight on Sunday 1 November 2015.

IMPORTANT NOTICE CHANGES TO THE ALLOCATION POLICY

The Royal Borough of Greenwich agreed a number of changes to the Allocations Policy on 18 March 2015, in order to manage the growing pressures on the limited housing stock and to reflect legal changes that have occurred over the last few years.

These include:

- The creation of a fourth housing band so that the Royal Borough can better manage the demands for housing across the priority groups
- Revisions to the priority groups within the Allocations Scheme
- Changes to the groups that can be excluded or suspended from the Housing Register

Full details of the Allocations Policy can be found on the Royal Borough's website at:

www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/downloads/89_housing_allocations_allocation_system

IMPORTANT NOTICE Heating Charge for RBG properties

Mend over matter for Men in Sheds open day

ENTHUSIASTIC craftsmen will be showing off their handiwork during a special open day event aimed at men.

It's a chance to meet the 'Shedders' when the Age UK Bromley & Greenwich branch hosts a Men in Sheds open day. The event is open to those wanting to know more about Men's Sheds – the workshops for making, mending and hobbies – aimed at men over 50. Wendy Smith, health & wellbeing manager at Age UK Bromley & Greenwich said: "Men's Sheds offer a unique network of support to men and their families. Our award-winning Men in Sheds project launched in June 2010 enables men aged 50+ to engage in meaningful activities that give them back a sense of purpose they may have lost following retirement. Men say they enjoy the banter, being more active and getting involved in the community. With two sheds located in Eltham and Woolwich, and plans to develop our Shed model, popularity and demand for the project never wanes."

The Meet the Shedders event is on Thursday October 29 at YMCA Thames Gateway, Antelope Road, The Dockyard, off Woolwich Church Street, Woolwich, SE18 5QG. To register email pcahill@ageukbandg.org.uk tel: 020 8294 3017.

Blackheath club
cricket trophy

by Dick Townsend-Smith

BLACKHEATH Cricket Club lifted the Royal London National Club Championship Trophy for the first time since 1971 with a comprehensive nine-wicket victory over Northern CC from the Liverpool & District Cricket Competition.

Their victory could hardly have been more comprehensive or more crushing. Captain Chris Willetts's team scaled heights of their own to carry off the most prestigious trophy in English club cricket, beating Northern by nine wickets with 92 balls to spare. By the end of the 30th over, Northern's players may have been anxious to get off the field while Blackheath's were also keen to do so simply to open the champagne. Willetts made 58 not out off 97 balls and Tanweer Sikander an unbeaten 52 off a mere 48 balls. Said Willetts: "It ended up being reasonably comprehensive but our bowlers really set it up. I wasn't too disappointed to lose the toss because I thought it would do a bit early on. I thought we gave them twenty or thirty runs more than we should have done. "There's only one or two players who remember us winning this in 1971 but it is nice to play at a club which has a tradition of doing well in these competitions." It was Blackheath's second victory in the national knockout and the third time a team from the Kent Premier League has won the trophy, after Bromley won it in 2007.
